

NAVIGATING A MENTAL HEALTH CRISIS

It can be a challenge to determine if a situation is a crisis. Some general indicators can be:

- The person's behavior puts them at risk of harming themselves or others.
- Without crisis responding or intervention, the person is likely to have significantly reduced levels of functioning (e.g. placed in a more restrictive setting like the hospital or jail).
- The person cannot resolve a situation with the skills and resources available.

Potential Signs of a Crisis

- Inability to cope with daily tasks
- Hygiene, eating, sleep difficulties
- Rapid mood swings
- Increased energy or pacing
- Disorganized or delusional speech
- Suicidal thoughts or behavior
- Increased agitation
- Verbal threats
- Physical violence
- Destroys property
- Inappropriate language
- Abusive behavior
- Hurts others
- Self-injury
- Drug/Alcohol abuse

Guidelines for De-escalation

- Ask how you can help
- Use clear language
- Use "I" statements
- Present self as a calming influence
- Use non-threatening body language
- No touching, shouting, or sudden movements
- Provide validation/acceptance
- Use active listening skills
- Paraphrase concerns
- Focus on strengths
- Build hope - resolution is possible!
- Reduce distractions (ask others to leave, turn off the TV, etc.)
- Do not personalize
- It is okay to be silent

Behaviors & Responses to Avoid

- Avoid challenging delusional thinking or beliefs that seem untrue or false to you
- Do not argue or threaten
- Avoid intense questioning
- Avoid sarcasm, laughing, or humor
- Announce actions beforehand
- Don't restrict the person's movement
- Try to be aware of what may worsen the person's fear and aggression

Additional Ways to Help

- Do not leave the person alone unless you are concerned about your personal safety.
- Take a break from de-escalation if needed, but try to remain in contact in some way.
- Mental health professionals always advocate seeking professional help for someone who has suicidal thoughts.
- Try to involve the person in the decision-making about what to do, who should be told, and how to seek professional help.
- Use phrases that support feelings of control and safety:
 - “Would that be all right?”
 - “Do I have that right?”
 - “So, let me see if I got this. You are saying...”
 - “Would you mind if I...”
 - “I can see why you'd feel that way.”

REMEMBER!

EVERY SITUATION IS UNIQUE AND CRISIS SITUATIONS CAN BE HARD TO PREDICT.
